

DAILY APPEAL.

MEMPHIS.

SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 3, 1856.

Largest Circulation in the City.

ENGLISH OUTRAGE IN THE GULF.

There seems to be a decided impression at Washington city that the late indiscretions of the English Government, as shown by the action of the British fleet have been communicated in puseance of direct instructions from the English Government. The number of such outrages now reported to our Government, according to a statement of Senator Douglas, in the Senate, is thirty-three. This seems to indicate that the English are bent upon search American vessels. It is not probable that the officers of the British was stem were recklessly venture upon so hazardous an experiment, without direct orders from their Government, and especially is no systematic a manner.

It has been taken the only proper course, in despatching to the scenes of these indignities the largest disposable naval force at his command, with orders which, we doubt not, will result in a speedy reparation for the insults to our flag. We shall expect a hear of war to work in the Gulf, and we must make the insolent officers of Great Britain do no worse than repeat the old and abominable conduct of their audacious inferiors as with the rights of our seamen.

THE FIFTH CONGRESS-FIRST SESSION.

Washington, May 29.—Read—The Foreign Affairs report to the search of America's vessels by British men-of-war was adopted.

Mr. Mason, of Virginia, spoke on the resolution, saying that individuals are entitled to peace, and in the event of war it is equally the right of every nation to protect its commerce and its slaves.

Mr. Story and Lord Stowell showed that an armed ship of any nationality, could not be lawfully used for any purpose, and that it was not bound to obey the laws of any state.

Mr. Clay said he was 107 years of age.
